COME TO GET ideas!

EXPERIENCE THE STORIES OF MORE
unique local projects!

LOOK BEYOND THE FENCE! GET inspired, educated & inside FOUR RENOVATED VANCOUVER SPECIALS;
DIFFERENT HOMES FROM THOSE OPENED
ON THE INAUGURAL 2009 TOUR

The award winning Lakewood Residence will be among the Vancouver Specials open to ticket holders on Saturday September 25th feedback from 2009 tour > "The tour was awesome! Very Inspiring! I will never look at a Special in the same way again. I always thought there was hope for the Specials and you have shown the possibilities are there!"

the vancouver special is probably the most frequently occurring residential house style in Vancouver and possibly the only one uniquely designed for our city. If you own, rent or sell residential property in Vancouver, learning how to work with a Special is a MUST!

back by popular demand this is a one-day, self-guided tour of 4 local Vancouver Specials. Each project brings inspiring ideas and personal touches. The participating homes boast a variety of original Vancouver Special features, layouts and configurations. Visitors use a numbered brochure to make their way from house to house in any order they prefer. The brochure contains a write-up about each participating house including its social history, interior design and architectural features.

pre-tour lecture Tuesday September 21st 2010. 7pm. Unitarian Church 949 West 49th Ave. $10. Award-winning Architect Stephanie Robb, of Pechet and Robb Art & Architecture, will present her perspective on 10 years of work on Vancouver Specials including a preview of two of the houses opening on tour. Coupled with the presentation of Robb's latest project will also be the story of a Do-It-Yourself Special renovation on East 22nd Avenue by homeowner and photographer Scott Massey.

Some things haven't changed much over the last 125 years, especially when it comes to favourite Vancouver pastimes. In celebration of 125 years since the incorporation of the City of Vancouver, the 2011 VHF calendar will feature "THEN&NOW" photo collages of typical Vancouver scenes and activities. Enjoy comparisons like "high wheel bicycles on Hastings Street in 1910" with "Critical Mass Bike Ride on the Burrard Street Bridge 2009" or "Bathing beauties at English Bay 1921 in knitted swim coveralls" with "Wreck Beach 1981".

Desktop Calendars will be available for pick up or shipping in early December. Pre-order your copy now! $15 plus taxes (and shipping, if applicable).

A SAMUEL MACLURE INSPIRED DAY-TRIP TO VICTORIA INCLUDES LECTURE AND VISIT INSIDE 3 MACLURE HOMES

A self-taught architect, SAMUEL MACLURE designed houses from the 1890s through WWI for BC's political and industrial elite. The designs took advantage of each site and setting, and they were meticulously finished to display native materials and local construction techniques.

Martin Segger, B.A., Dip. Ed., M. Phil., F.R.S.A., F.C.M.A. will give a lunch-time lecture on the work of Samuel Maclure. Professor Segger is Director of Community Relations at the University of Victoria, and since 1979 has been Director of the Maltwood Art Museum & Gallery, at the University of Victoria. His Academic contributions include Victoria, An Architectural History (1979) and The Buildings of Samuel Maclure: In Search of Appropriate Form (1986).

OLD SCHOOL: FIRST GRADUATES EARNING THEIR CERTIFICATES IN HERITAGE CONSERVATION FROM THE VHF

This Fall presents the first opportunity for Old School students to complete the Certificate Program. With practical courses like windows and masonry, and theory courses like planning a renovation or navigating City Hall, the first graduates now have solid knowledge and resources in their toolkits to tackle Heritage projects, large and small. The VHF will recognize the program's first graduates at the Heritage and Sustainability public lecture November 4th, delivered by renowned sustainability and green heritage rehabilitation advocate and architect, Carl Elefante, who is credited with coining the phrase "the greenest building is ... one that is already built."

Some thoughts about Old School from one of our first Old School Certificate registrants, Morgan Campbell:

Heritage = exciting? YES!! I have never been involved in a program that was more carefully planned, educational, informative, inspiring and fun!

In the early 1980's, heritage resources in Vancouver were in short supply. We read Old House Journal (in its leaflet-style salad days) hung out at places like Jack's Salvage - and sneaked around abandoned buildings hoping to find just the right old door knob.

Forward to 2010. The Vancouver Heritage Foundation's Old School Certificate Program offers a treasure trove of rich and varied resources for renters or owners of an old house, construction industry workers, architects, engineers, government officials or planners, artists, musicians or lovers of history and culture.

No graduate of the Old School Certificate Program will ever look at an old Vancouver house or building again without appreciating the historical, cultural and technological context in which our built environment was created.

I endorse the Old School Certificate Program so highly that I am recommending an advanced Level II Certification and plan to take every course the Vancouver Heritage Foundation offers. Old School has literally opened doors for me in terms of professional contacts and associates, re-connected me with old friends and helped me make new friends who have similar interests in construction, architecture, culture and history.

After returning from an Old School course, I raved on for hours to my family and friends about what I saw, where I went, and what I learned. Then I showed them all my photos from the day!

I am not one to hang certificates and diplomas on my office walls, but my Old School Certificate will be the exception!

MESSAGE FROM the development desk >

I hope everyone had a fantastic summer and that some of you were able to join us for our summer programming which included the annual Heritage House Tour, Hotdogs for Heritage and five walking tours. The weather held out for most of the House Tour and it was absolutely gorgeous for Hotdogs. The two events combined saw over two thousand happy faces.

In this newsletter, you can read all about the exciting fall programs such as the Heritage and Sustainability Nexus, Get-out-of Town tour to Victoria, Vancouver Special Tour, Mid-Century Modern Tour and Old School. Don't wait to register – do it now, as many of our programs sell out in advance of the date.

Have you ever thought about how reasonably priced our programs are? Part of the VHF's mandate is to provide programming that is accessible to the general public. The VHF wants EVERYONE to understand the importance of restoring, reimagining and reusing Vancouver's older buildings, so we keep our course fees low to encourage greater attendance. As a result, it is often difficult to cover costs and we have to rely on sponsorship and donations to keep programs running. The VHF will be asking for your support again by contributing to our annual Friends Campaign. Look for our request in your mailbox at the end of October. The donations received from this campaign help support our myriad of educational programs and granting activities. Please give with the best of your ability. Our city and you, its residents, will benefit.

JOHN NEATE OF JJ BEAN COFFEE ROASTERS

Sip and Savour...if that describes how you enjoy your coffee, then local Vancouver company, JJ Bean Coffee Roasters is catering to you. At JJ Bean, coffee is roasted five days a week and baked goods are baked daily. Quality matters. This sentiment is reflected all the way through to the buildings that house John Neate's coffee empire. When creating his Main Street location – based on John's memory of his parent's basement rec room, complete with shag carpet –most of the original structure was retained. John even hunted through salvage yards to find just the right vents to match the originals. The Commercial Drive store was re-stuccoed with old, difficult to source and apply rock and glass stucco.

John Neate's coffee roots run deep. His paternal grandfather was roasting coffee for Nabob in the '20s and in 1945 founded Neates Coffee in an old Yaletown warehouse. With John's father working alongside John's grandfather, the company focused on higher quality coffee. In the late 60's and early 70's their customers included The William Tell, The Cannery and the original Keg. John joined 'Big John' (grandpa had already retired) in 1979 but eleven years later sold the company to Nestle where both John Sr and John Jr (hence the JJ in JJ Bean) worked for 6 years. Finally, in 1996 John found a willing seller and purchased The Coffee Roaster locations, one on Granville Island and the other at Victoria and Powell. Soon thereafter, JJ Bean Coffee Roasters was born.

The JJ Bean coffee kiosk on the CBC Plaza opened in February of this year, right below the VHF's public art exhibit, THE WALL. A percentage of coffee sales from this kiosk are donated to the VHF to help fund the changing exhibits. John is happy to be giving back to the arts community – a community that understands and appreciates good coffee. Does John value old buildings? Apparently so – the kiosk's design was based on an image of a very old, vine covered, dilapidated garage ... and the house he lives in ... a Craftsman.

The Vancouver Heritage Foundation is grateful to John Neate for his ongoing contributions to The Wall At CBC - a public art project.

VHF granting news

2010 was a limited granting year. Nonetheless, this slowdown in granting activity gave the VHF staff & granting committee the opportunity to review our grant structures and capacities, opening up opportunities for change and improvement. In early fall the VHF will be launching updated versions of its grants including True Colours, Restore It! and Conservation Plans.

Check out the grants page of our website www.vancouverheritagefoundation.org/granting.html in October for more news and details.

THANK YOU!

ON SUNDAY JULY 11, 2010 the sun was shining on staff and volunteers sporting red aprons as the 2nd annual Hotdogs for Heritage event opened its gates. Treasure seekers immediately snapped up items at the Architectural Salvage sale and were delighted with their unique finds and much sought after original hardware. The hotdogs were a hit, as was the soon-to-be chart topping band, Headwater.

The numerous silent auction items had everyone bidding on something and many people walked away with their fabulous winning bids. The kids were kept occupied with an assortment of candy guesses, face painting and colouring. The big kids (mainly soccer fans) could be found sipping a cool-one in the Granville Island sponsored Beer Garden. All in all, it was a great day that raised $30,000 for the Vancouver Heritage Foundation's programs and activities!

MESSAGE from the Chair

According to Thomas Wolfe, "Things that once seem everlasting ... are changing all the time."

I read this quote in the recent issue of Preservation, a magazine published by The National Trust For Historic Preservation. Editor James Schwartz then goes on to say, "But change doesn't have to mean loss. It can mean rebirth and reuse".

Both quotes made me think of another book I read over the summer holidays, Exploiting Chaos – the main ideas being that change is constant in life, that times of crisis are also times of great opportunity, and that those who survive are the ones most adaptable to change.

Climate change and economic crisis are on everyone's mind today. Conservationists are adapting by learning to think big – to think beyond just saving historic buildings to how "the rebirth and reuse" of older buildings and neighbourhoods can actually help solve many of our community's energy and climate change problems as well as contribute to the local economy.

It's exciting to see so many people waking up to the fact that "heritage conservation" and "sustainable development" have a lot in common. In short, both are focused on saving valuable resources for future generations.

The VHF is continually researching the ties between heritage and sustainability. Previously we published a guide for greening old buildings entitled "New Life Old Buildings". We were able to do this with the generous support of the Vancouver Foundation and the Province of BC Heritage Branch.

This fall we will be following up with a public education program on "The Nexus of Heritage and Sustainability". A public lecture on November 4 will be followed by an all-day symposium on November 5. The featured speaker will be Carl Elefante of Quinn Evan Architects in Washington D.C. – the person who coined the phrase "the greenest building is the one that is already built". Funding for this program is being provided by Vancity, the Real Estate Foundation of BC, CMHC, and SFU Continuing Studies. Details are available on our website at www.vancouverheritagefoundation.org.

The VHF staff and board continue to try and think outside the box, expanding our programs and events, even our definition of what is heritage, to keep up with evolving perspectives and new ideas in conservation. To help with this we sit together every summer for a 4 hour planning and visioning session. In addition to programming, fundraising and marketing remain two important topics for VHF consideration.

We always want your ideas too. Please don't hesitate to share your ideas and feedback with us. Each of you in your own way contributes so much to helping us accomplish our dream of being a successful heritage conservation organization with a real voice and presence in this city. We couldn't do what we do without you! Thank you.

Mollie Massie, VHF Chair

a word from vhf's ubc summer interns

We have four top things about working for the VHF during the summer:

The People: We loved meeting the many people involved in the VHF and seeing their selfless dedication to Vancouver's heritage. The Staff: We learned a lot about the heritage movement and how diligently the office works to sustain it. Diane was not only the first and last one in the office, but was always supportive and generous with everything. Diane, you're awesome. Elana amazed us with her creativity and event-planning savvy. Michelle's approachable, outgoing demeanor always made us feel welcome. Rebecca's organizational abilities are exceptional, as are her unique sandwiches. The Events: Big events mean big piles. The boardroom table is invaded by boxes and transformed into a t-shirt folding surface, paper sorting facility, or gift wrapping station. The piles magically disappear after the event. The table is a table once more. The German Tourists: German tourists love Arthur Erickson. Thank you for giving us this amazing summer experience and we hope to see you again!

Sheena Soon studies landscape architecture and was the office assistant. Stewart Burgess studies architecture and wrote the heritage & sustainability case studies.
