2012 ANNUAL REPORT

VANCOUVER
HERITAGE FOUNDATION

www.vancouverheritagefoundation.org

From the Executive Director

Vancouver Heritage Foundation delivers unique, award-winning education and public awareness programs that encourage us to conserve the city's historic homes, buildings and institutions. Reusing, rehabilitating and retrofitting older places where people live, work and play benefits Vancouver in multiple ways.

Heritage buildings give each of our neighbourhoods a distinct identity by paying tribute to the colourful figures who built and lived in Vancouver over the last 127 years. The rehabilitation and reuse of existing buildings diverts tons of debris from the landfill and supports the city's goal to be the greenest city by 2020. We need to make better use of the buildings we already have rather than depend on new, green buildings to attain our sustainability goals. And, rehabilitated older buildings attract tourists and reveal to visitors the rich and diverse history of our region.

In late 2012 the VHF took a look at what the public thought about heritage buildings and their connection to current civic priorities of affordability, density and energy efficiency. Released in early 2013, the survey showed overwhelming public support for retention of heritage buildings coupled with a desire for less demolition in city neighbourhoods. Those who responded to the survey indicated that they would rather live in a retrofitted heritage building than in a new building. The full study is posted at www.vancouverheritagefoundation.org.

Through public programs such as tours, lectures and workshops that attract more than 6,000 people annually, Vancouver Heritage Foundation continues to make a difference in public attitudes and awareness of the important role historic places play in our communities. Change is inevitable and is good for our city, but change should respect the past and maintain our sense of place.

There are exciting times ahead at the VHF. Between our dedicated Directors, our more than 200 annual volunteers and our highly skilled staff team, the wish list of programs and activities is rich with ideas. Many generous Vancouver Heritage Foundation donors and sponsors help us bring these creative ideas to fruition. Thank you! We could not do it without you. We are always looking for new partnerships. Please contact us with your ideas for how we can link your business or organization to the programs of VHF.

I hope that you are inspired by reading this report to take a tour, attend a lecture or a film or to make a donation. We value your participation however you choose to get to know us. Let us know what you think by liking us on facebook, following us on twitter, sending us an email or calling our office.

2012 was a year of outreach for Vancouver Heritage Foundation with activities like the Places that Matter plaque presentations bringing our work to the attention of diverse businesses and community groups around the City, many not previously aware of our programs and events.

Our tours continue to expand in scope and push the boundaries of traditional thinking about heritage buildings. VHF tours include Westcoast Modern, Vancouver Specials and Laneway homes in addition to traditional heritage houses. 2012 was the 10th annual Heritage House Tour which is the VHF's largest event and central to our fundraising efforts.

This year has seen strides in our communications with the new logo and identity providing an updated look to print and digital materials. The new website offers improved navigation and content, and VHF now has a regular presence in blogs such as Vancouver is Awesome and Spacing and on Facebook and Twitter, which is helping us to reach new audiences. Our fundraising efforts this year focused on our annual campaign and continued to engage our major donors more actively in heritage events such as tours of St. James Church and tower in the DTES and the mid-century Oberlander residence at UBC.

The Brown Bag Lunch & Learn Series, launched in the fall of 2009, and the evening lectures at Hycroft have continued to attract interest as they feature the stories behind Vancouver's heritage resources and the challenges of conservation and renovation projects. We appreciate the continued support of the BCIT downtown campus and the University Women's Club for our venues.

VHF has continued to make the case for a linkage between sustainable best practices and heritage conservation through sponsorship of a research study and widely-based public survey that found wide community support for heritage conservation and high value placed on our built heritage as part of the city's sense of place. Please look for it on the VHF website.

I want to recognize the dedication and hard work of Diane Switzer, our Executive Director, the staff of VHF, and our committed Board of Directors.

Education and Awareness

OLD SCHOOL courses

Old School courses teach owners, professionals, and the interested public how to repair, maintain, and make informed decisions about older buildings. Old School attracted 272 people attending 11 workshops throughout the year.

Courses at the Vancouver Public Library and the City Archives demonstrated how to research your home's history and proved extremely popular filling up in record time. Also popular in 2012 was Photographing Heritage Structures where students learned expert techniques to get the best shots. Both of these courses will be returning in 2013.

Congratulations to our 2012 Heritage Conservation Old School Certificate Graduates: Kate Grindlay, Mahbobeh Kalhor, and Ivonne Voelkel.

BROWN BAG lunch and learn

Brown Bag lunch time education sessions address current civic issues and projects through illustrated talks delivered by working professionals.

Continuing at BCIT's downtown campus the talks proved to be as popular as ever. Over 150 people attended 6 separate talks on topics varying from Gastown Revitalization to the evolution of PNE Hastings Park to the process of releasing an architectural guide book. Always interesting, the speakers for this year's talks did not disappoint and many classes ended with thought provoking questions from the attendees.

A stand out among 2012 talks was on-trend speaker Mark Brand of Save-on-Meats whose offbeat, up-front personality led to a very lively Q and A period after an intimate look at Brand's unique and often criticized business model.

Following on the success of the inaugural 2011 evening lecture series, six lectures were offered on Tuesday evenings at the University Women's Club at historic Hycroft in 2012. The goal of the lectures is to provide education and public awareness about the history and built heritage of Vancouver, and to offer it in a historic setting. Audiences ranged from 50 to 85 people at each lecture.

Thank you to the University Women's Club for the use of Hycroft.

HOUSE TOURS

HERITAGE HOUSE TOUR

Inspiring the public to revitalize older homes is an important goal of VHF. The annual Heritage House Tour brings 1500 people, including more than a 150 volunteers, inside private homes to give them ideas for their own projects and to inspire them with stories of the history of the city. 2012 was an amazing celebration of ten years of VHF tours. From a quirky, rehabbed corner store, to beautifully designed gracious Shaughnessy mansions, to a Strathcona house with a startling demarcation between old and new, the tour was a grand success.

MID-CENTURY MODERN HOUSE TOUR

Following WWII Vancouver developed its own, unique architectural style. Westcoast Modern homes responded to the local landscape, building materials and weather. Architectural firms such as Thompson Berwick and Pratt, Ron Thom, Downs Archambault and Arthur Erickson designed hundreds of homes throughout the lower mainland. Annually VHF opens a selection of these homes to the public on one of our most popular events, the Mid-Century Modern House Tour.

VANCOUVER SPECIAL HOUSE TOUR

Designed to be built quickly and cheaply to house the flood of new immigrants coming to Vancouver from the mid-60s to the mid-80s, the Vancouver Special is experiencing a resurgence of interest from young families. They appreciate their flexible floor plans for multiple and extended families, and their relatively low price point in a housing market that remains largely out of reach for most homebuyers. The Vancouver Special Tour takes visitors through five examples of rehabilitated Specials to give them ideas for their own projects.

LANEWAY HOUSE TOUR

The lanehouse was a very hot topic in 2012 with Vancouver City Council talking heavily about density issues. Media coverage and debates on social media helped to attract 500 people to the tour of 7 lanehomes on this year's tour. New to the tour was the first lanehome in Vancouver to be approved without a garage or parking pad. This lanehome was also able to fit 2 bedrooms into just under 600 square feet. Most memorable on the tour was the home with a hot tub built into the floor of the kitchen. Complete with solid glass flooring to cover it when not in use, this feature was an unexpected bit of luxury.

VHF only opens lanehouses constructed behind retained existing homes.

WALKING TOURS

500 tourists and locals participated on 21 walking tours in 2012. Led by Maurice Guibord and John Atkin, these content rich tours gave walkers a chance to get out and learn the unique history of different neighbourhoods in Vancouver. Extremely popular this year was the Art Deco tour and the tours of southeast Vancouver.

GET OUT OF TOWN BUS TOUR

Mission, Stave Lake and Port Haney were all stops on the 2012 Get Out of Town Bus Tour. Guests boarded the bus from downtown Vancouver to join a guided tour through the Fraser Valley.

Starting with the Stave Lake Powerhouse, guests were introduced to one of the first electric cars, built in 1912! They then moved on to the site of St. Mary's Mission School, which is now buried in Fraser Valley Heritage Park. From there, guests enjoyed a delicious lunch at Blackberry Kitchen in Mission followed by a visit to historical Port Haney, named for Thomas Haney who originally owned all the land between the Fraser River and Dewdney Trunk Road.

Special Projects

Places That Matter Plaque Project had a stellar year with a total of 48 plaques presented by the end of 2012.

All types of historic places were commemorated: from churches, a Sikh Temple, unique Vancouverites' homes, a neon sign, community centres, corner stores, a music festival, night-clubs, a cycle track, an interurban transit disaster, a chicken coop, a cemetery, the centre of gay rights, the detention site of 8000 Japanese Canadians, 100 year old trees and rock gardens, and community activism that stopped a freeway!

Over 25 sponsors and supporters contributed to the project and engaged in our public celebrations. Plaques were sponsored in memory of loved ones, or to recognize the efforts of a collective. History, stories, and memories were shared about the places that matter to so many people. Plaque celebrations ranged from simple gatherings to a formal crowd of 100+ with the Mayor and MLA's in attendance.

We have continued to work with over 500 people on the project, from community individuals, the City of Vancouver, Vancouver Park Board, Government of BC, community associations and groups, individual businesses, families, Business Improvement Associations, city councillors, historians, justice committees, social and print media, and our plaque producer, Anchor Signs.

Check out the new Places that Matter webpage where we feature upcoming presentations, a gallery of past presentation photos, links to all past presentations, the Google Map of sites and further resources.

A MODERN FACE for heritage

VHF has a new look! After a re-branding process with professionals and volunteers, VHF has a modern look with a new logo and website, dedicated colours and fonts and streamlined marketing materials. This new brand reflects both our dedication to what we're known and respected for, but also offers a new perspective that we hope our dedicated followers appreciate, and new followers admire. The branding was launched in September, with the new website up and running early in 2013.

MUSIC IN HERITAGE HOMES concert series

VHF partnered with Borealis String Quartet in 2012 to offer a four part musical series featuring classical music presented in historic homes. Offered with high tea and an inside view of some of Vancouver's most remarkable homes, the series was presented on four weekday afternoons through out the fall.

The events served as fundraisers to heighten awareness of both VHF and the Borealis String Quartet.

ARCHITECTURAL salvage sale

Held on May 12th, the Architectural Salvage sale featured reclaimed items from heritage buildings such as newel posts, mantels, doors and windows. There was a large selection of smaller items such as door hardware, light fixtures and odds and ends. The event raised $8,200 for VHF and ensured bits of history were diverted from the land fill.

HISTORIC WEST HASTINGS map guide

The Downtown Vancouver Business Improvement Association partnered with VHF to complete a printed map guide featuring West Hastings. Well-known writer and artist Michael Kluckner wrote the copy for the guide and local graphic designer Mac Hillier completed the layout using historical photographs and Michael's text. The guide was released at the end of 2012 and is available through Tourism Vancouver, the VPL Central Library location, the VHF offices, at all of our events, and online at www.vancouverheritagefoundation.org.

THE WALL at CBC Plaza

VHF partnered with JJ Bean Coffee Roasters and the CBC to install the third massive art installation on the large, concrete wall at the CBC plaza. Curated by Christine Hagemoen, CBC Archives, the exhibit featured an archival image, titled "A Night at the Roxy" from the CBC still photographer Alvin Armstrong. The small negative from a 1957 made for TV movie was enlarged to fit the CBC Wall, transforming it from a documentary image to a piece of art that speaks to the history of Vancouver and the CBC.

Grants

In 2012, VHF's grant programs assisted nine projects. Recipients included six privately owned homes, two multiple-resident dwellings, and one community group.

Grants ranged from $300 to $2000 but typically averaged around $1000 for a total of $10,309 dispersed in grant funding.

Included in this years grants were 2 homes repainted in their original paint schemes through True Colours grants, and 7 buildings with character fabric repaired or restored through Restore It! grants.

The Japanese Language School (pictured above) utilized funds to aid with replica pivot metal windows as part of a massive restoration project that created a revitalized community space.

A Restore It grant helped a Strathcona BC Mills prefab home (pictured right) with the restoration of their original siding and porch, while another home was assisted with new gutters and a replica beveled oval light for their entry door.

The repair of the soffits and sleeping porch featured in a Point Grey home, and two historic apartments rounded out the grants with the exterior restoration of a historic wrought iron fence and terrazzo stone stairs.

VHF's Endowment Fund was established by a $250,000 gift from Colliers International facilitated by the City of Vancouver through the sale of the Robson Street Library. The first individual donations to the VHF Endowment Fund came from the Founding Pillars campaign in 2003-2004. This campaign was led by Robert Lemon and Sally Reukauf Warren, and resulted in $150,000 being added to the fund.

RECEPTIONS

WING SANG fundraising soiree

On a beautiful summer evening, VHF, Bob Rennie and Carey Fouks and the Royal BC Museum welcomed guests to the rooftop garden of Chinatown's Wing Sang Building. VHF presented Mr. Rennie and Mr. Fouks with an award for their stunning rehabilitation of this important historic building.

OBERLANDER house reception

Featured in the 2012 book on the mid-century west coast modern photography of Selwyn Pullan, the 1973 Oberlander Residence floating staircase was the stage for guests to hear from Architect Barry Downs and Cornelia Oberlander about the vision and construction of the home designed in partnership with the late Peter Oberlander. Thank you to the West Vancouver Museum for their partnership on this event.

Buntain Insurance Agencies Ltd. Heritage House Tour Sponsor

In 1967, James R. Buntain established Buntain Insurance with the goal of providing exceptional insurance service for his local community. When his son and daughter, Gordon and Lynn, joined the company a few years later it truly became a family owned and operated company. Today the operation has grown to 3 branches with a staff of over 25 and our goal is still the same; to provide exceptional service while recognizing the importance of giving back to the community.

The sponsorship relationship with Vancouver Heritage Foundation and Buntain Insurance is a natural fit as it helps connect heritage homeowners to all the information they need. And clearly VHF gives Buntain Insurance a chance to build relationships with potential new clients.

We know the pride that heritage homeowners take in their unique dwellings and insurance on older, unique homes can be complicated. Working with our team will help simplify this process and leave the insured at ease knowing that the correct coverage has been secured.

OPERATING AGREEMENT

Vancouver Heritage Foundation is grateful to the City of Vancouver with whom VHF has an operating agreement. The City recognizes the value of work VHF does to encourage the reuse and rehabilitation of older buildings. The work saves tonnes of debris from the wrecking ball and retains the character of the city. The City of Vancouver contributed 23% of the $488,000 2012 operating budget.

Volunteers

In 2012, 234 volunteers worked on our salvage sale and house tours. They shared their time and knowledge to give talks and presentations and they assisted on VHF committees. A wide range of ages and backgrounds are reflected in our fantastic volunteers. From professionals in the heritage sector to folks who just love history and architecture, we are very lucky to have so many dedicated volunteers, many of whom have been helping us out for many years.

We had the pleasure of giving twelve volunteers recognition certificates for having volunteered for ten years of Heritage House Tours – they were there from the very beginning!

We would like to offer our sincere thanks to all of these great people for sharing their time and love for Vancouver, and for making our tours and events possible.

The following is a list of Tour and Salvage volunteers, Committees, and volunteer presenters. Bold names have been volunteering with us for 10 years!
